

ABSTRACT:

[0078] Embodiments of the present invention provide an advantage over prior art software architectures by allowing a kernel to send requests to and receive corresponding results from user space applications. Because the kernel can utilize user space applications, the kernel can use the results of complex calculations without requiring a significantly larger kernel. This provides advantages because programming and debugging of complex algorithms can occur at the user space level rather than the kernel space level.